

Bible Christian registers

There is a good survival rate of Bible Christian baptismal registers, which will have been deposited in the county record offices. The problem, common to all branches of Methodism, is that you will probably have to work out to which Circuit your ancestors' chapel belonged, but as Bible Christian Circuits were quite small you will probably have a good chance of working this out. Go to the National Archives catalogue at <http://discovery.nationalarchives.gov.uk/> and use "Bible Christian" and the place in which you are interested, or the county, to find out where the original registers are held.

The map shows the availability of Bible Christian registers by county

It was not legal to marry anywhere but a parish church until 1857. Although 42 Bible Christian chapels were registered for marriages by 1867, the Registrar was required to be present. After 1898 ministers were allowed to act on behalf of the Registrar but, although 149 chapels were now registered, there seems to have been no take up of this facility by the Bible Christians. It is therefore unlikely you will find any Bible Christian marriage registers. In any case, the certificates obtainable from the General Registry Office, or local Registry offices, will tell you where the marriage took place (e.g. in the chapel).

There are few surviving chapel burial registers. The one for Lake Chapel, Shebbear has been transcribed and is available at <https://www.genuki.org.uk/big/eng/DEV/Shebbear/BibleChristians/AppendixC>

All surviving Bible Christian baptismal registers from before 1837 have been digitised, and are available (for a fee) at <http://www.bmdregisters.co.uk/>

Find My Past <http://www.findmypast.co.uk/> or Ancestry <https://www.ancestry.co.uk/>

In the following list, these registers are referenced as RG4/....

If you just want to know if an ancestor was baptised in a chapel before 1837, and who their parents were, then you can find this out for free at Family Search <https://familysearch.org/>

All the main genealogical platforms (Ancestry, Find My Past and Family Search) have been working with record offices to digitise registers. The Methodist Church in Britain now gives permission for our records to be included in these collections, so expect to see more Methodist baptismal records appearing online. A number of other baptismal registers have been transcribed by local family history societies, either online or in print and these are listed here.
